WEEK 1

National Museum of Mexican Art

I've visited this museum multiple times but I always enjoy finding new pieces every time I go. While I don't remember the exact name of this piece I really ejoy the mix of modern and traditional cultural elements.

Family Photo Scans

These photos were in my mothers photo collection I really enjoy using analog images in my own work when I get the chance. As a personal hobby I enjoy archiving/digitizing older photos.

Hecho En Pilsen

These photos were part of a larger collection of images taken by me that highlight Mexican pride and Latino Identity.

Isabella
Lovestory ♡

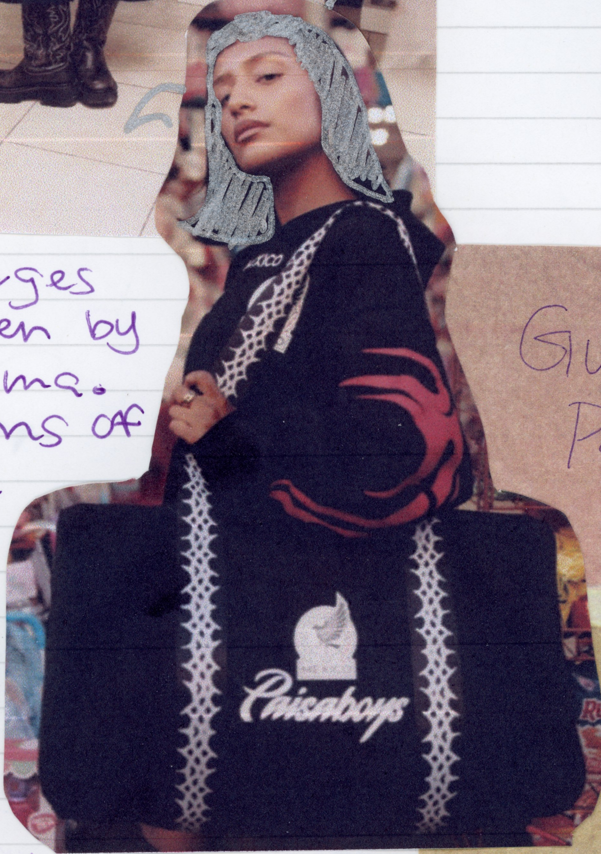
This picture was taken at a concert I attented for the artist Isabella Lovestory, I ~~[illegible]~~ definitely draw a lot of inspo from her. I like to listen to artists w/ smaller fan bases like Isabella, who although are not super famous, they have a lot of creativety to share w/ the world



These images were taken by Guicho Palma. I take tons of inspo from him especially when I first started to do photo. I appreciate that all of his work incorperates his culture no matter the project.

Evanelly Aguilar Set Design

These sets were created by Evanelly, she incorperates a lot of Girly elements and feminizes a lot of aspects of chicano culture

WEEK 3

Baby Don't Cry -
F Girl

Creative team: MUON

logo design: Minju Park

I really enjoyed the packaging especially the custom logo created using diffrent fonts

CHUU - XO, My Cyberlove

Production team: Sunny Visual Studios

Art Direction: Dean Alvarado

The box design stood out to me because of the heart cut out and forms that mimic lights surrounding it, as well as the fact that a crochet keychain is included in the album!

Nothing - A Short history of decay

This cover really stood out to me because I feel like I rarely see strong photos being used for album covers.

Cece Natalie -
Miss Behaves

I just really enjoyed how simple this cover is, music speaks for itself.

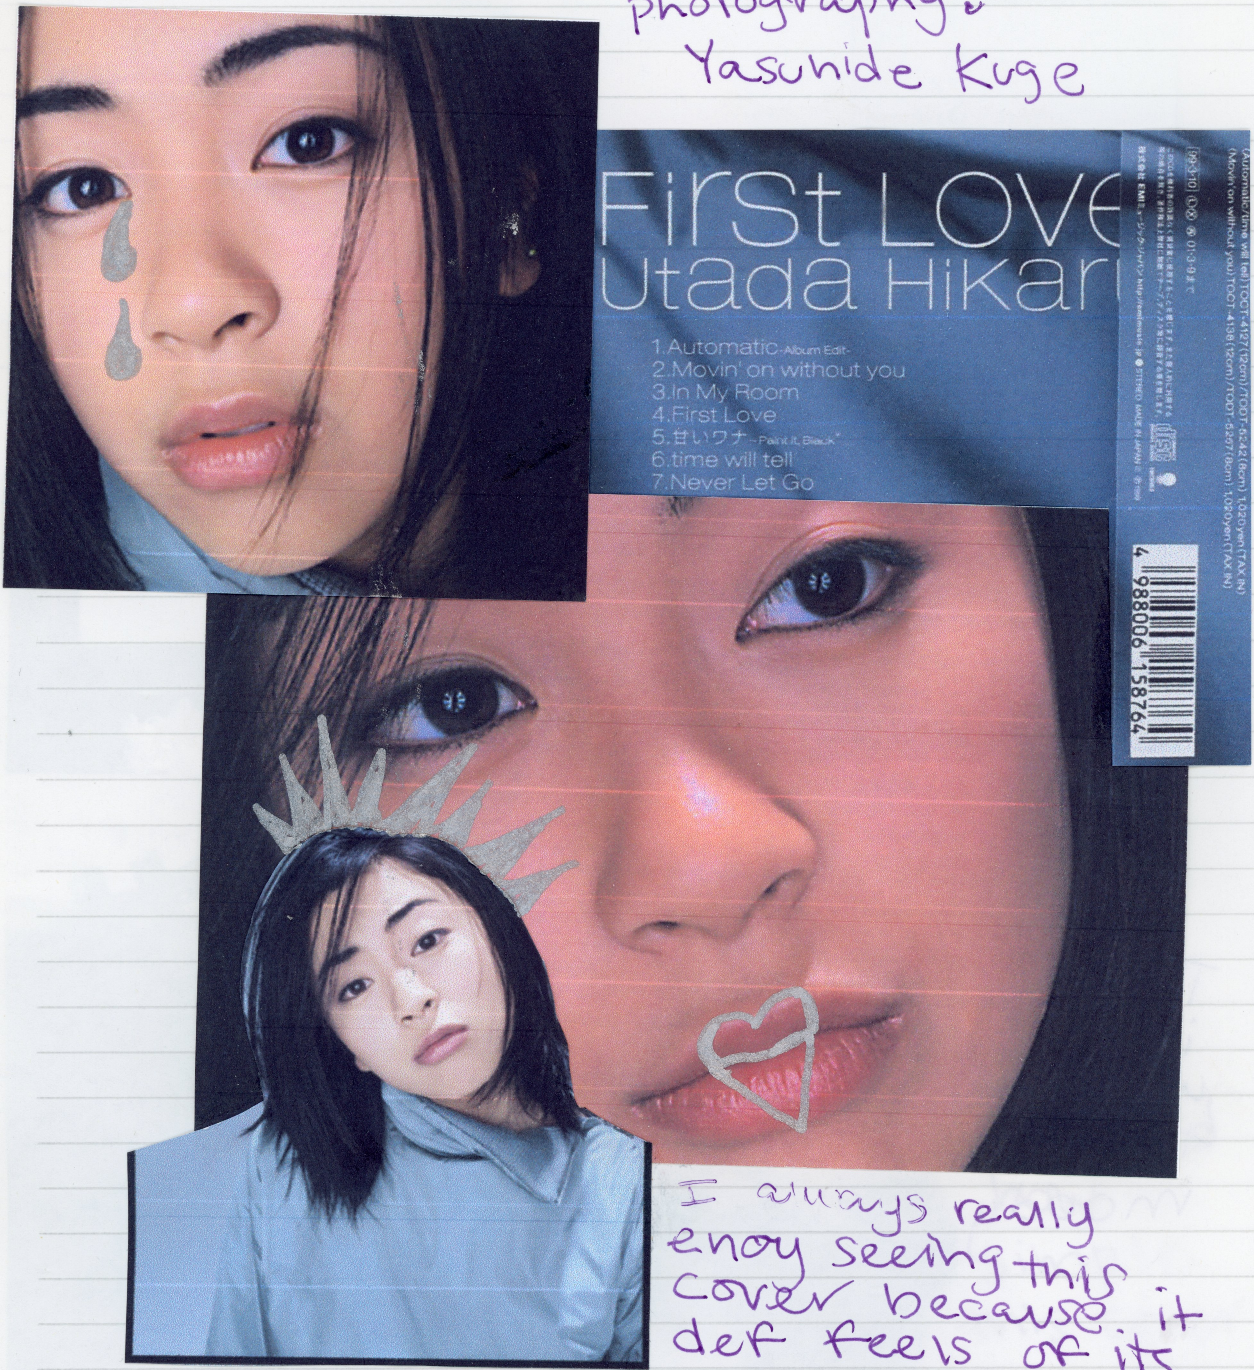
Itzel - be(e)light

photography: Bennett

The contrast of the red circle in the back stood out to me when looking at the cover and the image itself gives a moody vibe

Hikaru Utada - First Love

photography: Yasuhide Kuge



I always really enoy seeing this cover because it def feels of its time. close ups like this aren't something I see often in covers so it stands out to me.

WEEK 4

Creative
Direction: María Isas

While looking through sources this one immidetly stood out because of its strong use of typography + handwriting

This piece stood out to me because the virgin is such an important figure in Mexican Catholic Culture. Seeing the combo of 2 very diffs aspects of Mexican Culture is striking.

This image is from one of my favorite photographers but it doesn't resonate w/ me as much as his other work. Nothing stands out to me and feels like it lack depth. In general the Chicano photo space has become oversaturaded w/ less experimentation

I feel somewhat indiffrent abt this image
I love the design of the jelly firkin but it feels like it is becoming a passing micro trend. I've wanted one for the longest when they were rare vintage pieces. Now they are trending manufacture have introduced the bag in large quantities.
Although the style of bag is more accessible they still arent affordable!

I really liked the artists recration, especially that they took time to credit the OG creator of the meme.

Set design + hair: Evanelly Aguliar

For the same reason I didn't connect w/ Guicho's image, Evanellys work doesn't stand out to me either. Her set + bow designs tend to follow the same approach rather than exploring new concepts

FILM WEEK

This movie has a very distinct mid century aestheic that stands out throughout the film. The atmosphere is created through small details place w/in the set, making the word feel authentic. From packaging, posters and decor, helps immerse the audience in that specific time period.

Bring It On: Fight to the Finish

The biggest thing that stood out to me was the Jaguars branding. Its extremely flashy and vibrant using bright neon colors that you typically don't see from a HS cheer team. Reflects their identity as a team as the aren't tied to a specific school which makes them feel unique and diff from a trad squad.
